What is Social Prescribing?

Many things affect our health and wellbeing. GPs often see patients who are feeling isolated, lonely or stressed by things such as work, money and housing problems.

Sometimes people need a little help in dealing with the things life throws at them and often they don't know where to turn to for help and support.

That's where Social Prescribing comes in.

The idea behind Social Prescribing is to help you to have more control over your own health and find ways to improve how you feel. It starts with a conversation.

During lockdown

We received a referral for a patient who was elderly and vulnerable, but not on the shielding list. The patient was extremely anxious about shopping and did not feel she was safe to go to the shop. I then found details of local shops doing deliveries which she was eligible for and put her in touch. She was then able to get deliveries on a weekly basis from that point.

Pre Lockdown

The referral was for a patient who was agoraphobic and had severe anxieties about leaving the house. They were very lonely as the patient would not leave the house often and had no family nearby. We started off having regular visits weekly and then reduced these over time and replaced the visits with phone calls. I then offered to refer the patient to a Mental Health team at Bucks Mind and after 2 months they had accepted a befriender and we kept in contact every 2-3 weeks to check up on the patient.
